(1) According to the author, in what areas of life is courage actually required?

⇒ According to the author, early age of life is required courage when a child is in the school, everything is new. He has curiosity to know everything. For the fulfillment of the curiosity, he has to speak out. That much courage he must have. The author requests the teacher of his son that he should be taught to have the courage to be impatient. He should also learn to have patience to be brave. A man cannot be brave without bearing the hardship patiently.

⇒ Nature is called an open book. We have the eyes to see, ears to listen and mind to grasp. The earth, the water, the fire, the wind and the sky are the 'best teachers'. The earth teaches tolerance. The water teaches coolness. Here in the poetic expression Lincoln refers birds in sky, the bees in the sun and the flowers on a green hill side. He suggests that the teacher should give the students quiet time to think about the mysteries and wonders of the Nature.

Facing failure without cheating is far better and more honourable than getting victory by cheating others. Cheating is a negative approach to get success. One should always inculcate positive values. Accepting failure and adopting positive approaches to win again is the right way that brings honour and dignity to the person.

⇒ In a world where people are devoid of purpose, though highly educated but lacking in their mother's wit dependent on someone to take a simple decision, unable to handle a trifle single-handedly, and lacking morals and undisciplined there is only one rescue to escape from these maladies holistic education. Now it is high time that we prefer holistic education to our children and as life by itself is a learning process. The government should adhere to this system to cherish and enrich their values.
